

Progress Announces Speaker Lineup for jsMobileConf, the Community Event Dedicated to Mobility and the Broader JavaScript Ecosystem

November 6, 2019

Two-day, two-track event returns to Boston November 12-13, bringing together experts from Adobe, Microsoft, Moovweb, Netlify, nStudio, Progress, and more

BOSTON, Nov. 06, 2019 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Progress (NASDAQ: PRGS), the leading provider of application development and digital experience technologies, today announced its speaker lineup for jsMobileConf, taking place November 12-13 at the Seaport Hotel & World Trade Center in Boston. With more than 25 technical sessions, the event brings together leading voices in the JavaScript community focused on the latest JavaScript and mobile development trends, including native mobile apps, progressive web apps, serverless, machine learning, artificial intelligence, chat, augmented reality and virtual reality.

Progress, creator and sponsor of jsMobileConf, has been helping developers build beautiful JavaScript apps for many years – whether creating web-based apps leveraging Progress® Kendo UI®, native mobile apps with Progress® NativeScript®, or supporting these apps with the backend-as-a-service capabilities of Progress® Kinvey®. Progress understands the importance of the JavaScript community, and for the second year will bring together the best and brightest in JavaScript for two days of deep technical insight, best practices and networking opportunities at jsMobileConf.
